MARKET REVIEW

The first quarter of 2025 was marked by significant volatility driven by geopolitical, economic, and policy uncertainties. Much of the uncertainty centered around the new administration's international and economic actions. The S&P 500 declined by -4.27%, the Russell Midcap Index dipped -3.40%, and the Russell 2000 Index fell -9.48%.¹

The main driver of market volatility was trade policy as the new administration's tariff announcements sparked fears of higher inflation and a potential recession. Technology stocks, which had been market leaders in previous years, were hit especially hard as value stocks outpaced their growth counterparts and the S&P 500 lost ground.

ECONOMY

The country's economic picture is very different from what investors anticipated at the start of the year. The consensus then was that the Federal Reserve would continue to lower short-term interest rates as inflation eased, corporate earnings would grow more than 10% in the year ahead, and the new administration's policies of lower taxes and less regulation would spur business growth and propel the stock market. Instead, inflation remains stuck at around 3%, rate cuts are stalled, and earnings projections are being revised downward.

Unemployment ended March at 4.2%² and the Atlanta Fed estimates that the economy contracted during the quarter. It is safe to say that the market is still adjusting to the recently announced tariffs, which are stiffer than widely expected. The situation remains fluid, with companies scrambling to adjust to the new reality and international trade partners formulating responses. It remains to be seen how these developments will impact the U.S. economy and stocks in the long run. Meanwhile, the Fenimore research team will review and seek to upgrade the portfolios as we continue to own what we consider to be high-quality businesses that should be able to withstand whatever the coming months may bring.

A COMPANY-LEVEL VIEW

Fenimore Asset Management was founded in the midst of a recession 51 years ago and our approach to investing has helped our investors through many market downturns. We believe in owning businesses with characteristics like low debt, sustainable profitability, and strong management that can help them endure most economic or political shocks. Our research goes far beyond attending companies' quarterly earnings calls. It includes speaking directly and frequently with the leaders of our holdings and visiting them in person at their headquarters whenever possible. Additionally, we attend conference presentations and industry trade shows and engage with customers, suppliers, and competitors. This allows us to ask the hard questions, gain a deeper understanding of operations and strategies, and make confident investment decisions.

In our most recent meetings, we found FAM Funds' holdings to be strong and generally optimistic. Tariffs are certainly a concern; however,

FIRST QUARTER HIGHLIGHTS

- Markets turned volatile during the first quarter as economic fears arising from tariff threats drove the S&P 500, Russell Midcap, and Russell 2000 indices into negative territory.
- The FAM Value Fund, FAM Dividend Focus Fund, and FAM Small Cap Fund each beat their benchmarks during the quarter.
- The economic impact of tariffs will take time to manifest as businesses scramble to adjust to a rapidly changing landscape.

MARKET SNAPSHOT

these companies have diversified their supplier bases in the wake of the administration's first term, COVID, and the increased caution about doing business in China. They are now more prepared for the impact of tariffs. That is not to say that they are immune to economic forces — the road forward may be bumpy at times. For that reason, it is important to focus on long-term investing objectives and stay the course.

OUTLOOK

With tariff conflicts heating up, there is fear that U.S. economic growth could eventually slow and inflation may rise. If the U.S. and other nations make major compromises soon, such impacts could be lessened. In the meantime, market participants will have a close eye on economic growth, inflation, employment, consumer spending, and signals from the Federal Reserve about its interest-rate policy plans.

Tariffs will take time to flow through the economy, and our portfolio managers and research analysts will speak regularly with the leaders of our holdings to gauge their strength. At this point, it is unlikely that we will make major portfolio moves; however, as conditions warrant, we will review decisions position by position to ensure our investment thesis is intact and that the potential for long-term success can be realized.

FENIMORE SMALL CAP STRATEGY

FAM SMALL CAP FUND (FAMFX, FAMDX)

- The fund declined by -5.28% for the quarter, beating its benchmark the Russell 2000 Index which fell -9.48%.³ We expect our businesses to hold up better than the benchmark due to their stronger combined financial positions.
- Value outperformed growth within the small-cap space, with the Russell 2000 Value Index losing -7.74% while the Russell 2000 Growth Index dropped -11.09%.⁴
- The fund's outperformance was due to strength in our industrial and consumer holdings, which performed relatively better than some other industries.

Purchases

- We initiated a position in Baldwin Insurance Group (BWIN). Baldwin is a small-cap insurance broker, the type of company we have been investing in at Fenimore for decades. It reminds us of several other productive investments we have made in the space, although it is at an earlier stage of development. We see multiple strategic initiatives at Baldwin that should create long-term shareholder value. After studying the firm for several years, we took advantage of market selloffs that provided what we believed was a suitable margin of safety to enter into a position.
- We added to our positions in Dream Finders Homes (DFH), SPS Commerce (SPSC), and SiteOne Landscape Supply (SITE).
- Stock valuations have become more reasonable given the market selloff and we are finding opportunities to add to existing ideas as well as initiate new positions.

Sales

- We sold Hagerty (HGTY) shares to fund our purchase of BWIN. While we think HGTY is a good firm with an admirable management team, we thought BWIN would upgrade our portfolio quality even further.

The Fund's gross annual operating expense ratio as stated in the fee table of the Fund's most recent prospectus is 1.25% for the Investor Class. The Fund's gross annual operating expense ratio as stated in the fee table of the Fund's most recent prospectus is 1.15% for the Institutional Class. When excluding Acquired Funds Fees and Expenses, which are not direct costs paid by the Fund's shareholders and fee waivers, the gross annual operating expense as reported in the FAM Small Cap Fund's audited financial statements for the Investor Class is 1.23% and the Institutional Class is 1.14% as of December 31, 2024. The Advisor has contractually agreed, until May 1, 2025, to waive fees and/or reimburse the Fund certain expenses (excluding interest, taxes, brokerage costs, Acquired Fund Fees and Expenses, dividend expense and extraordinary expenses) to the extent necessary to cap Net Fund Operating Expenses for Investor Shares at 1.42% and Institutional Shares at 1.20%. FENIMORE DIVIDEND FOCUS STRATEGY

FAM DIVIDEND FOCUS FUND (FAMEX)

- The fund returned +1.53% for the quarter in a down market. This performance bested the Russell Midcap Index, which declined -3.40%.⁵
- The best performers were Arthur J. Gallagher & Co. (AJG), Republic Services (RSG), and HEICO Corp. (HEI). These names did well due to their strong growth outlook in the face of a slowing U.S. economy and their solid recurring revenue profiles. Even in a weak economy, customers will continue to buy insurance from AJG, people will continue to put their trash cans at the curb for RSG, and airlines will continue to do maintenance on their airplanes that require HEI products.
- The worst performers were Ross Stores (ROST), Trane Technologies (TT), and IDEX Corp. (IEX). The cautious economic forecast weighed on the outlook for both ROST, an off-price apparel retailer, and IEX, a diversified industrial firm. TT, an HVAC business, continues to have a strong backlog and order growth; however, the stock price reflected less investor optimism in their data center cooling operation. It is noteworthy that TT appreciated 51% in 2024.
- On average, FAMEX's holdings increased their dividends by 9.5% over the past twelve months and each one increased its dividend except for Entegris (ENTG), which is still paying down debt after a large acquisition. The top dividend growers were Amphenol Corp. (APH) 50%, Cintas Corp. (CTAS) 16%, and Verisk Analytics (VRSK) 15%.⁶

- We added to Steris (STE), taking advantage of price weakness as the stock traded at what we deemed to be a favorable valuation.

Sales

- We trimmed AJG and TT as their portfolio weights increased above our maximum size guardrail due to strong performance. This is consistent with our risk management practices.
- Several names were trimmed to raise cash, including CDW Corp. (CDW), McCormick & Co. (MCK), Microchip Technology (MCHP), Pool Corp. (POOL), Agilent Technologies (A), Paychex (PAYX), and ROST.

FENIMORE VALUE STRATEGY

FAM VALUE FUND (FAMVX, FAMWX)

- FAMVX returned -1.08% in the first quarter, 232 basis points better than the Russell Midcap Index's -3.40%.⁷
- Tariff uncertainty, stagflation fears, and a growing worry of an AI bubble fueled volatility in the markets and negative returns for many factors and industries including cyclical, technology, and momentum stocks.
- Companies viewed as tariff-proof or economically defensive did relatively better. These dynamics, along with sustained firmness of insurance premiums in most risk markets, helped drive the outperformance of our insurance holdings to which we have relatively high exposure. Three of the top four contributors to performance were insurance carriers or brokers and our outperformance relative to the benchmark was driven by our stock selection within the financials sector.
- Our top three contributors to performance were Brown & Brown (BRO), Progressive Corp. (PGR), and AutoZone (AZO).
- The top three detractors to performance were Ross Stores (ROST), Zebra Technologies Corp. (ZBRA), and IDEX Corp. (IEX).

Purchases

- We took advantage of a post-quarter earnings release drawdown to continue to build our Keysight Technologies (KEYS) position. Earnings came in above expectations, but investors were concerned about KEYS' ability to hit margin targets in the near term.

Sales

- We continue to trim BRO to comply with our 9% position-weight ceiling. Due to BRO's relative performance this quarter, it grew to a more than 9% position.
- Berkshire Hathaway (BRK.B) continues to be a source of cash to meet redemptions and/or fund the purchases of what we deem to be higher quality/better prospective return businesses. In this case, we used the trim to fund an increased position in KEYS.

We will continue to assess the probable effects of tariffs on the long-term earnings power of the companies we own and those we closely follow while looking for opportunities amidst the volatility.

Institutional Class shares became available for sale on January 1, 2016. For performance prior to that date, this table includes the actual performance of the Fund's Investor Class (and uses the Fund's Investor Class' actual expenses), without adjustment. The performance results shown on this and the next page for the periods prior to January 1, 2016, the date of commencement of operations for Institutional Shares, are for the Investor Shares, which are subject to higher fees due to differences in the shareholder administrative services fees and certain other fees paid by each class. Institutional Shares and Investor Shares would have substantially similar performance results because the shares of each class are invested in the same portfolio securities of the Fund. Because of the difference in the level of fees paid by Investor Shares, the returns for the Investor Shares will be lower than the returns of the Institutional Shares.
